Shipping Fruit.
New York, Sept. 5th, 1870.—As requested, I annex instructions for handling pippins and ladies' apples, which the shippers should follow rigidly:

1st. Gather the pippins before they are fully ripe, picking the fruit with the hand and carefully laying it in an open house till fully sweated and dried off.

2d. A new barrel only ought to be used after taking out the bottom, not the head. Tack the lower middle hoops with three nails after tightening the hoops. Smooth the nails inside so as to have the barrel smooth inside, put the head to the floor, carefully select the perfect apples and wipe them; place the stems of the apples to the floor, layer after layer, till the barrel is heaping full, gently press in the bottom, and head line the bottom by tacking a slip across the heading and tack the end hoop with three nails and turn up the head and do the same. Mark each barrel with the initials of the shipper so that they may be known here.

3d. Ship by the Old Dominion Steamship line, if from Richmond, sending me bill lading of each shipment, seeing that the lots are uniform and regular throughout. Lots of 100 or more barrels sell for more than small parcels or irregular fruit.

4th. Ship no defective or mixed fruit, and on no account put large fruit on the heads and poor fruit in the middle of the barrels; in plain words, let the fruit be packed honestly throughout.

5th. Handle the Ladies' apples as carefully as the Pippins, observing this one difference—it is the small red Ladies' apples which are most valuable; the Winesaps, if carefully handled, will sell too, but the prices have been from $4 to $6 for them; for the Pippins, $4 to $5, and for Ladies' apples, $10 to $30 per barrel. The fruit grows along the mountain spurs in Virginia have a fine climate and exactly the soil for the growth of the best apples, and I desire to see them reap all the benefits by adopting the same policy which prevails here. The Ladies' apples and the Pippins grow to perfection from the Potomac to the Tennessee line, and there is nothing which will pay better for the labor spent in the production than apples. Hoping I have given all the instructions necessary, and that our people may profit by them.

I am, yours,
D. H. LONDON,
No. 63 Broadway.

IMPOSTORS.—Nine out of every ten street vendors are swindlers, and their guises are so numerous, and arranged with such professional skill that they are well calculated to impose upon unsuspecting people. The last new dodge of which we have personal knowledge was successfully played upon a very worthy lady of the northwestern section of the city.— She is well known for Christian piety—one of the necessary accompaniments of which is sympathy with the poor and distressed. A decent looking middle aged woman recently called upon her and recited a pitiful story about her only son who had died at the almshouse; that he had died in the Christian faith and his last happy moments were only clouded by the thought that he could not be buried with his father, but must share the usual fate of deceased paupers. She had assured him that he should be buried where he desired, and after his death had set about redeeming her promise. She had then made up all the money necessary but nine dollars and a half, and desired the lady in question to contribute towards the balance of the fund. Placing perfect reliance in the truth of the statement, told with pathetic tenderness, her eyes the while overflowing with tears, the lady was so moved that she readily consented to make up the entire balance demanded, and the woman left calling down blessings upon her head.

Of course this woman was a swindler, which the lady afterwards ascertained to her sorrow.
Had she allowed the ordinary prudence of other transactions in life to govern this one, she would at least have subjected the case to some little investigation before bestowing her funds. But these vagrants of the "sympathy" tripe depend upon carrying everything by overwhelming the sympathies with a carefully concocted story, by which the object would greatly suffer if only postponement of the aid took place. In this case the corpse was ready to be buried and the authorities would not hold it a moment longer. Hence there was no time for investigation. And the stories told by these vagrants will be found to possess the same necessity for immediate aid.

It is as hard for some people, we know, to shut up their heart from sympathy as others, and the more numerous class to open theirs.

THE OYSTER BUSINESS.—The Norfolk Day Book, of the 6th instant, says: Our oyster business commenced here on the 1st instant, and many of the dealers are going at it with a vim, while the bays, harbors and rivers are alive with boats and vessels engaged in catching the delicious bivalves. The oyster business is a tremendous thing in Baltimore, where they estimate their transaction by numbers of millions of dollars. In that city there are from thirty to forty packing houses engaged in the business, having a capital of from $15,000-000 to $20,000,000. Fifteen thousand hands, of all ages and of all races, and of both sexes, are employed in opening oysters. Some packing-houses open 4,000 bushels a day. There is a process by which oysters are packed in tin cans so that they will keep in perfect order for an indefinite time, and are in that state sent all over the world. They are first steamed in the shell. A crate full are rolled into huge steam boxes for this purpose. This process not only helps to preserve the oysters fresh, but it also opens them so that they are easily taken from the shell.

Large quantities of oysters are also sent, on ice, fresh. The packing is done mostly from September to May. The oysters are found in inexhaustible quantities on the shores of the Chesapeake bay and its tributaries.

ALEX. G. TALLAFERRO, sep 10—2aw2w Rapid Ann, Culpeper co.

To the editor of the Alexandria Gazette:— Please announce me as a candidate for Congress at our November election; subject to the judgment of a Conservative Convention. The necessity of holding such a convention is palpable to all, and the claims of all candidates should be cheerfully submitted to that arbitrament.

the counties which may compose the district of which Alexandria will form a part, as a candidate for Congress.

Sept 21

obedience to the solicitation of many friends in several of the counties comprising the Seventh Congressional District, Judge W. W. BRENT will be a candidate to represent the Seventh Congressional District of Virginia in the next Congress of the United States, subject esteemed fellow citizen, H. C. CLAYTON, esq., is presented to the voters of the Seventh Congressional District of Virginia as a suitable candidate to represent the said District in the next Congress. It is needless to say anything of his qualifications for the position, in our community where he is well known, but to the voters of other portions of the field we can cordially endorse him as entitled to their confidence and support, both on account of his integrity as a
